

Lesson 7 Directions:

Part 2 of 5 (go in order if possible; finish Part 1, move to 2, etc)

Topic: War

Big Idea: How war impacts a community at large, including pop culture and art.

This lesson continues exploring how War impacts a community at large specifically, ways that important information is communicated to children. To begin with, there is an article that you will find interesting. It presents useful information from a different decade. You will be surprised that much of it is information that you still hear today. While reading the article you will create a venn diagram to demonstrate how the information compares and contrasts today's drills in a school setting.

1. Read this article and create a venn diagram comparing things that are the same and/or different for school children in WWII and school children today.

Draw the venn diagram on your own paper using the sample below:

2. Write a paragraph comparing and contrasting the similarities and differences that you noticed between school children during World War II and your life in school today. If you need more information check this article out. How Children's Lives Changed During WWII.
3. Extended Learning: Below is a link to a famous fiction story about children that were living through World War II. They were sent away to the countryside without their parents, until a time that it would be safe to return to life as normal. It is the first book in a series. Maybe you have heard of it. Follow along reading, while listening:

Here is another site which offers audio books in the public domain. Linked is the children's fiction, though other genres are available: LibriVox
