ELA Virtual Learning

English III: Using Visual Clues to Draw Conclusions

April 13, 2019

Lesson: April 13, 2020

Learning Target(s):

● Students will be able to draw conclusions from a graphic summary of a novel.

Bell Ringer:

CAPTION A PHOTOGRAPH:

A Six-Word Memoir

Closely examine the photograph before writing a caption to accompany the photograph. You must use six words (no more, no less) to capture what you feel would be a good caption to this photo. Enlarged Photo.

Learn:

Part 1: Using Visual Clues to Make Inferences

Readers make inferences when they use clues from the text to discover something that the author doesn't directly state.

Sometimes readers make an inference by making a connection between the visual clues in a picture and information in the text.

- Watch the video below to get a better understanding of how to make an inference using both visual and textual clues. Be sure to participate in the practice examples provided in the video to test your understanding.

    → Watch: Making Inferences and Drawing Conclusions

Practice:

- At the beginning of this link, you will find the Of Mice and Men graphic detailing the plot of the novel.

- After reading and viewing the graphic, complete this chart using quotes and images to make inferences and draw conclusions about the novel.

If you want to learn more…Additional Resource:

Join this interactive moderated conversation with other students across the country in this New York Times picture interpretation. You will get to see how other students view and draw conclusions about this picture.

What's Going On in This Picture? | April 6, 2020