Public Safety
Lesson: #14 April 9th

Objective/Learning Target: Mindset of Policing Pt 3

Warm Up

Remember, when you were a little kid, the first time you saw your teacher outside of school? The image of being a real person was a shock of sorts.

When someone says “there are the cops”, what do you envision?

What do we say about judging books...?

Lesson Activity

We've watched a few videos about how we perceive the police, how the police want to be perceived, and how they are working to change their image.

Do we ever see police as people, as moms, or dads, or brothers and sisters? Do we ever simply see them as human beings?

Watch the following video and try to take a different look.

Practice

Police-Community Relations has taken a tremendous hit in recent months. With all the negative police stories in the news, it seems impossible to find common ground between law enforcement and the citizens they serve. This talk explores the root of the issue, how we got there and how to work our way back, one interaction at a time.

“The true soldier fights not because he hates what is in front of him, but because he loves what is behind him.”

G.K. Chesterton

“I can not do all the good the world
needs,

but the world needs all the good I can do”

Reflection

Chelley Seibert is a retired Dayton Police Officer. Her assignments included Patrol, Crime Prevention, Media, and Academy Instructor. She has taught Cultural Diversity for 20+ years, and Instructor Skills Development through the State. Chelley was the first female in Dayton to be awarded the Top Firearms Award and was named Dayton's Officer of the Year in 2011. Chelley has a BA in Music from Miami University and Master of Education from Wright State University. She has presented locally and nationally in universities, academies, and at the International Law Enforcement Educators Trainers Association (ILEETA). Chelley currently plays in the band Frozen Feet of Dayton, a choir director for Cincinnati's TRU Choir and a singer/songwriter/keynote speaker in the Positive Music industry.

Did Ms. Seibert change the way you see Police Officers?

In what ways?

How about that T-Shirt?

How will this change your future interacts with Law Enforcement?
