Objective: Student will photograph their best 5 favorite subject matter (same item needs to be seen 5 different ways) and 5 least favorite subject matter (same item needs to be seen 5 different ways) shots are displaying that one thing from different view/vantage points. Any light source or lens may be used. Cellphone or regular cameras may be used or combined.

Student may edit any way they wish. There will also be 1 photo of whatever subject matter/style of your choosing. Student is displaying all knowledge gained from previous lessons with regards to proper exposure, focus, composition, use of light, use of lenses, motion and “seeing” for visual appeal to a viewer. “Show Me What You’ve Got”

Bell Ringer: Did you need to change to another least favorite subject matter just to make the project work better?

Activities:

Task #1: Finish taking shots of your least favorite subject matter, changing points of view and angles. Really look at it in a new light/manner.

Same/least favorite subject matter displayed 5 different ways: There are 5 images of a similar/same/your least favorite subject matter shown in a different manner/point of view. Images still must show creativity in regards to how taken with solid composition for visual appeal to the viewer. You may use any type of lighting or lenses.

Task #2: Finalize the editing some of your favorite shots (yes I know you don't like the subject matter, it doesn't mean it isn't a worthy image to edit) Put all 5 of your least favorite subject matter on one page or make a slide show.

Task #3: Try another photo editing app of your choice-use one you have never tried before. Like Adobe Lightroom
What features do you like? Dislike?

As I have said before I am not a fan of posed people pics or selfies..... They have their place as in travel and documenting moments but I would rather take city and landscapes or stairs shots.
