How Great Leaders Inspire: April 17, 2020

Objective/Learning Target:

Students will understand how the golden circle works in the context of leadership.

Warm Up

Yesterday we started the day with the “assignment” to give five genuine compliments throughout the day.

If you tried that, answer this question:

How easy was it for you to notice things you could genuinely compliment?

If you did not try the assignment answer this question:

If you aren't able to give other people compliments, what is a compliment you could give yourself?

Lesson Activity: The Golden Circle

In your notebooks, write down these prompts: Make sure you leave room to respond to the prompts while you watch the video.

- The speaker's thesis or main point was...
- In 20 words or less, the Golden Circle is...
- What are the pros and cons of the speaker's Golden Circle idea?

Practice: Know your Why

Answer these questions in your notebook:

1. Do you think it is a good or bad thing to know your 'Why?' Explain your answer.
2. Have you ever known someone whom you feel had a very clear 'Why' that drove their daily actions in life?
3. What was it about them that told you they had a clear 'Why'?

Reflection: What is your Why?

You should take a minute to reflect on this question and answer honestly:

“I want to use my influence to _____ because I believe _____.”

I challenge you to not only write this in your notebook, but post it someplace where you can see it often.
